Calgary Power Co. Spray Lakes Project Nearing Completion

Saturday and Sunday some 50 country editors of Alberta, including the editor of this paper, were guests of the Calgary Power Company to look over their new Spray River power project.

Meeting at the Calgary Power Company's offices at 8 o'clock Saturday morning they were given a short lecture on what they would see. On the wall was a large map of the Spray River project. Accompanied by a dozen Calgary Power Company officials all boarded two buses and were taken directly to Spray Canyon, to the site of Canyon dam, some 20 miles south of Canmore. All along the route from Ghost River power plant to Canyon Dam officials spoke of the different power plants and the sites of new ones that will likely be built in the future.

Here began the inspection of the ten and a quarter million dollar Spray Lakes hydro power project which will go into production early in November when the 62,000 horsepower Spray plant, the first of three, will start. It is expected the 3,600 horsepower Three Sisters plant will begin operation sometime in May and the 23,000 horsepower Rundle plant by the fall of 1951.

The Canyon dam is 190 feet high and 600 feet long. The base is 1,010 wide. It was built in one season. To realize the magnitude of the work involved in building this dam it must be seen to be appreciated. Several miles in the direction of Canmore there is another dam known as the Three Sisters. At this point lunch was served at the camp cook house and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After lunch all boarded the buses and rode over the dam. This dam is 48 feet high and 1,980 feet long. Just below the dam a power house is being built and will develop 3,600 horsepower when in operation. A canal over five miles long, much of it blasted from the mountain side leads to the North Whiteman's Dam and the Spray power plant that will develop 62,000 horse power. The water to operate the turbine will travel from the top of the pass through a tunnel some 2,000 feet long and will drop 900 feet. This tunnel has been cut through Chinaman's Peak to preserve the natural beauty of the pass and the two twin lakes situated near the top of the pass.

The lower section of the tunnel has been lined with steel and its balance is being lined with cement which is handled from the top of the tunnel.

The generator has not yet been set in place but will be shortly. The generator weighs about 100 tons and to get it over the narrow twisting roads up the mountain to where it is to set up was a problem. However, it was safely landed at the site.

At the present time many hundreds of workmen are employed on the project and are rushing the work to completion.

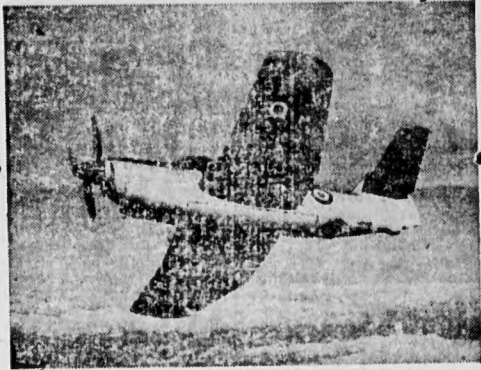

Below the Spray power house another power plant is to be set up. This plant will have a capacity of 23,000 horse power.

The immensity of the whole project which extends over 20 miles of mountain country is impressive. The roads leading to the projects cost over $300,000 and if it should be opened for tourist traffic would be a scenic attraction.

The party arrived in Banff shortly after six p.m. The next morning some took the opportunity to see the chair lift and enjoy the ride. Leaving Banff about two o'clock Lake Minnewanka and the dams there and the power plant at the foot of the hill located close to the high way were visited. Some time was spent here since this plant was in full operation. Here details were given of its operation and numerous questions answered. The plant was shut down for a short time and then started again so that the visitors could better understand the operation of the plant. All this was very interesting to everyone.

From there the party headed for Calgary. As it was getting late in the afternoon the Ghost River power plant was not visited.

The motivating force behind the Calgary Power Company is Mr. G. A. Gaherty, who for almost thirty years has had the vision of the development of the Spray Lakes as a hydro-power project in mind. It must be gratifying

ROYAL NAVY'S LATEST SUBMARINE KILLER

The Blackburn YA5 is the Royal Navy's latest prototype anti-submarine aircraft, specially designed to operate from air craft carriers as well as from shore-base stations. The YA5, despite its huge bomb trunk, the folding doors of which are plainly seen, is not a bulbous aircraft and is designed to have very little drag. The radar dome is retractable.

ing to him to see the realization of at least a part of his hopes and dreams with the production of power by the 62,000 H.P. Spray plant. When the other two plants of the development, Three Sisters and Rundle, are completed in 1951, the spray Lakes will be capable of producing and additional 88,600 horsepower of electricity for the benefit of Alberta's domestic, farm commercial and industrial users.

Calgary Power Ltd. is fortunate in having as its president a man of such outstanding engineering ability as Mr. Gaherty. This is attested to by the honors conferred upon him by the Engineering Institute of Canada. In 1927 Mr. Gaherty was honored by the Institute when he was awarded the Gzowski Medal, for outstanding contribution to the engineering profession. This medal is a memorial to the late Sir Casimir Gzowski, one of the founders of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Mr. Gaherty was again honored by the Institute in 1949, when he was awarded the Julian C. Smith Medal or "Achievement in the Development of Canada." At that time the institute paid the following tribute to him: "Mr. Gaherty is one of Canada's most informed and capable electric utility engineers and has contributed in a large measure to the development of a number of hydro-electric utilities in Canada, notably Calgary Power Water Problems Committee of the Engineering Institute. He has made real contribution to the progress of Western Canada in the fields of irrigation and power development."

Mr. Gaherty is well known to many people throughout the length and breadth of Canada and particularly in Alberta where he has directed the expansion of the Calgary Power system for many years. Mr. Gaherty is also president of Farm Electric Services Ltd., which is doing such an outstanding job with the co-operation of the farmers and the Provincial Government in bringing electric service to a great number of farmers each year.

PROGRESS IS DOWN NOT UP

In the recent rail strike one union leader is quoted as saying that the companies were unwilling to permit their workers to participate in the higher revenues which would flow from prosperity.

That sort of thing sounds fine. It is right that every Canadian should be better off as the nation as a whole develops.

But there is a major fallacy in the idea that constantly rising wages in one industry, no matter how large or how important, benefit the nation as a whole or that any one industry has a prior right to tap our national wealth.

Canada and Canadians will enjoy greater prosperity in the world as our techniques and resources permit us to lower real prices to produce and deliver goods and services for a constantly lower expenditure of manpower.

From 1890 to 1947 statisticians and economists tell us that the share of the manufacturer's dollar in this country absorbed by direct wages and salaries varied hardly at all. It was 21.3 percent in 1890 and 20.7 percent in 1947.

And as a matter of fact the percentage share of the dollar going to "direct labor" at a low of 19.8 percent in 1927 and a high of 23.9 percent in 1932 in the depths of the depression.

In other words when prices were falling, the employees got a larger share of the total dollar sales of their employers. Moreover the wages they received bought more.

Some day perhaps we will realize that we as individuals and as a nation make more progress by reducing prices by more efficient production methods and wider markets than by constantly raising them.

Town & District

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Skerrow of Calgary spent a week in town visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robinson. They left for their home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Robt. Lyons and children of Turner Valley spent several days in Gleichen last week visiting Mrs. Lyons parents. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Taylor.

The next national holiday to be observed will be Thanksgiving Day on Monday October 9th. With the hunting season in full swing at that time the hunters will have a big day providing the weather is somewhat favorable. Others will just stay at home and get ready for winter.

When something went wrong with the steering mechanism of the light truck owned by Geo. Rasmussen it turned completely over badly denting up the body. Both Mr. Rasmussen and the driver escaped with a few minor bruises.

Some time after midnight Saturday house prowlers got busy in Gleichen and made two unwelcome calls. They called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schmidt and searching through their coats hanging in the kitchen took about $15 in cash and leaving the house left their tracks in the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt were asleep on the ground floor and heard nothing. Either before or after they robbed the Schmidt home they visited the tent in which Donald and Dale Hunter were asleep. There they took $42 from Donald's pants pocket and $5 from Dale's pants pockets.

Records have produced convincing evidence that excessive body weight means a higher risk of such conditions as high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, heart failure, cancer, diabetes, and a shortened life span. Data compiled by insurance companies show that the death rate among overweight rises well above normal. High blood pressure is twice as common in obese men as in average weight men. The death rate from diabetes is eight times higher than among average weight persons. A nutrition survey in one Southern Alberta district showed that 13 percent of men and boys, and 27 percent of the women and girls, were too fat. A similar survey in a high school dormitory in central Alberta found 12 percent of the boys and 35 percent of the girls more than 10 percent above average weight. It would seem that more of our Alberta people (at least in the districts where surveys have been made) are overnourished than undernourished. The chief cause of overweight, it appears, is simply over-eating and often we find that overweight is eating the wrong kinds of foods. The body cannot make proper use of the food it gets so that food is turned into body fat. Reducing body weight is a matter of eating less total food but at the same time following food rules.

Legion Auxillary Hold Meeting

The first meeting of the Women's Auxillary to the Canadian Legion after a recess was held Thursday evening in the Legion Hall with a good attendance. A new member, Mrs. W. F. Erford, was initiated.

The visiting committee reported sending gift parcels to W. J. Phythian and E. Taylor in Belcher Hospital. Also fruit juices to members who have been ill recently.

A motion was carried that a gift parcel be sent to Buddy McKay who is one of the Gleichen boys in Korea with the Canadian navy.

A date was set for the bazaar which is December 9th.

Refreshments were served by the lunch committee and a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Thorburn won the contest.

Planning And Saving For The Future

"To have and to hold, when applied to money, does not seem to be an easy lesson for most people to learn. It seems that most of us need to concentrate more on the "holding" part of our financial plan.

A writer, who from an income-producing point of view divides the average individual's life into roughly three parts. The first, from about age twenty to age thirty, might be called the period of preparation or getting settled. The second from thirty to the late fifties is the period of accumulation. The third from the late fifties on is the age of retirement or at least of lessened earning power.

No matter how much time and money may be expended during the teens and twenties in preparing young people for their life work they can never be independent during the last period of life unless they have made good use of those twenty-five or more golden years in the second period. It is during this period of accumulation that one's surplus must be built up and judiciously invested if one hopes to be independent the rest of his days. His watchwords should be plan save and invest.

Planning means making and using of a budget. The budget is the floor-plan of your financial structure. Fit it to your own situation and then stick to it instead of shelving it after a couple of trials. Of what good are blue prints if the structure does not grow up in accordance with their specifications? And of these specifications will be the proportion—whatever it may be—of your income that is to be set aside as savings. Another specification will be the determination to have a home of your own some day—one that eventually will be free and clear. Because it is free of mortgages or other claims it will stand between your family and distress. Life insurance and other sound investments should likewise be included.

The second watchword "Saving" has been brought to the consciousness of the people of this generation by many years of educational effort. It has been adopted by many thousands of Canadians as evidenced by savings accounts in post offices and banks. It was given a great impetus during the war when through the urge of patriotism and in response to the call to "win the war" thousands of people who never before had invested in a bond bought bonds and thus learned the lesson of how easy it is for money to accumulate and multiply itself through interest payments. But the lesson of saving is one that must be taught to each successive generation and there should be no slackening in the effort. It is a lesson that all parents should see their children learn early in life and continually (Continued on last page.)

THE OPEN ROAD

Suppose you came suddenly upon two roads. One straight, well-trodden—the other thin and twisting off into undergrowth. If you didn't want to arrive at any place in particular, you might choose the latter. But not otherwise.

Before you, as a buyer, run two roads. One is the road of knowledge of an advertised product. Thousands use it. There is no mystery about it, no doubting, nothing hidden.

When you don't use advertisements, you go the doubtful road. You have only hazy knowledge of the product ahead. No trademark or name to depend upon guides you. The result may or may not be worth the effort. You don't know.

Duties Of Citizenship

IN THE FALL AND EARLY WINTER municipal elections are held in many communities throughout the country, and these elections arouse varying amounts of interest, depending upon the candidates and issues involved. In many instances the concern of a large percentage of the voters regarding either the candidate or the issues is not great and often there is a small turnout at the polls. In some communities this situation has become so serious that Citizens' committees have been formed to try to awaken public interest in elections and to encourage people to exercise their franchise.

Do Not Wish To Take Office

This is one example of the attitude which may develop in regard to the duties of citizenship. There are few who do not at times criticize the government and persons holding public office, yet many who criticize would not undertake to hold a public office themselves, and do not vote when they are given this opportunity to express their opinions. If those who are not satisfied with conditions in their own community or in wider political fields would take an active part in bringing about a change, and at the same time, if those who are satisfied would express their views, and defend their principles, there would be a greater interest in public affairs, and a greater field from which to pick candidates for office. Canadians would not wish to give up any of the privileges of citizenship which they enjoy, but many of them do not take advantage of these privileges from year to year.

People Fought For Franchise

The need is recognized, not only in Canada, but in other democratic countries for a more positive attitude towards the duties of citizenship and for greater willingness on the part of the people to assume public responsibilities. Only a hundred years ago the people in England were fighting for votes for everyone, yet in the years since many have forgotten that voting is a right which had to be won, and which should be appreciated and preserved. Members of federal, provincial and municipal governments are all responsible to the voters, and evidence of public interest in elections and in the actions of representatives after they are elected would add greatly to the satisfaction of those holding public offices. The political freedom which we enjoy, and which had to be won for us in the past, should not be held lightly now.

ANGRY SUN GOD RAINS OUT DANCE

ANADARKO, Okla.—When officials of the American Indian Exposition planned a Sun Dance for this year, some elder tribal leaders cautioned against it. They said the Sun God would be angered and cause rain—or worse—if the sacred ritual were performed. But the dance was scheduled for the opening performance of the week-long program and so much rain fell the performance was cancelled.

In a teams of four match, the first East-West sequence was One Club—One Diamond—Two Spades—Three Spades; Four Spades. West was at fault in supporting a secondary suit with only three trumps; his best rebid is Two No Trumps. South led ♠ 7, and East had to establish Clubs before clearing trumps. ♠ 6 was led to dummy's ♠ K, but South ruffed East's ♠ A at the next trick, and East still had to concede a Spade, a Club and a Diamond. The second pair reached the best contract, bidding One Club—Two Clubs; Two Spades—Two No Trumps; Three No Trumps. North led ♠ 5; West won the second trick with ♠ K and then finessed dummy's ♠ 8, making nine tricks for a gain of five match points.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Then It Rained

By RUTH K. KENT

They Were All Friendly But . . .

MARCIA HUNT frowned as she surveyed her fellow members of City Council. Phineas Green removed his pince-nez glasses and tapped them against his thumb. Sam Samson just sat. Marcia continued, "You mean, then, that you intend to use the money to fix up Central Park instead of putting a sidewalk along the highway near the north city limits?"

"My dear Mrs. Hunt," Green's lips drew into an overdue-mortgage expression, "I . . ." Green's business was a loan company.

"I know," Marcia flared, "people can walk along the shoulder of the road. But when the shoulder is muddy they walk on the highway. It's dangerous."

Green scoffed. "My folks live out that way, and if I thought . . ."

"My folks live there too," Marcia said. "Of course, you never walk."

She watched his eyes waver, eyes that could see only dollars. He was determined to have a grandstand in the park because a loan association was convening there. Green planned an outdoors meeting with the whole town attending. And with Green officiating in striped pants.

"As I have other business now," he announced, "the meeting is adjourned. As Council chairman I'll see that the work on the park is started immediately."

Samson gave Marcia a curt nod and followed Green.

Marcia sighed as she shambled out to her old car. Somebody had to do something. She headed north and began canvassing every house in the district . . . friends, strangers, newcomers. They were all friendly but their pleasantries only served to delay her. It was wearisome and discouraging. "We'd like to sign the petition, but Green holds our mortgage. Or we may need to borrow."

Marcia held few signatures at next Council meeting. Not enough to stop the banging in Central Park. Green smirked. "Mrs. Hunt . . . women don't understand business. I expect you to help welcome the delegates."

But Marcia kept plugging. On the morning of the convention it was her hope that it would never rain again. By the time there were more city funds Green would have another ax to grind. That evening her spirits were damper than the weather. She tried to hook herself into the old black velvet. Green would be in a vile temper, would probably try to blame her for the rain. It was a blow to him to have to hold the convention in the auditorium.

Marcia's worry was because of the rain. Everyone on the north highway would be coming in. Many had to walk.

As Marcia backed out of her garage she noticed the two old sawhorses and the lantern that had been used when she had the sewer put in. Laboriously she tied them to the running board, sweat mingling with rain on her plump face. Then, grumbling, she headed to the highway.

Yes, that place was puddling. Two boys helped Marcia drag the sawhorses to the puddle. She lit the lantern and hung it up.

"What's it for?" one boy asked. Marcia scratched her head. "It's supposed to warn drivers to go slow."

They Remember Dieppe

Canadians living in England celebrated the 1942 raid on Dieppe with a commemoration service at Eastbourne, Sussex, from which the main party left for the raid. Here Colonel G. A. Turcot (representing the high commissioner for Canada) lays a wreath on the war memorial at Eastbourne, eight years after.

People will be walking on the highway."

"We'd stay and be traffic cops, but we have to go home to dinner."

Marcia put a dime in each flat, then set out for the hall.

Green pounced on her. "Mrs. Hunt, it's time to start the meeting," he said.

"Start it, then," she said, peering from the wings at the big crowd.

"Mr. Roth, the president, isn't here," Green sputtered. "Start anyway. Have everyone sing the national anthem."

"We sang it."

"Sing something else. I'll phone the hotel . . ."

"There's been an accident," she announced, coming back.

His face turned pasty. "An accident? Where?"

"You guessed it."

"My folks . . ."

"Yes, your folks. Fine time to think about them," she shouted. As she turned to leave she bumped a flustered little man, wearing his wrist in a sling. "I'm sorry," she said.

"Why, Mr. Roth!" Green beamed. "Just a minute, Mrs. Hunt. You must meet . . ."

"Meet nothing," Marcia said, "something's happened."

Mr. Roth was perspiring. "Indeed it did. This." He pointed to his wrist. "Sawhorses indeed!"

"In the road?" Marcia gasped.

"Well . . . no. The people were in the road. I was late and driving fast. Noticed the lantern and slowed down. Then saw the people and turned off quick and bumped right into those infernal horses," he said nervously.

"I'd better investigate," Marcia said.

Mr. Roth detained her. "You needn't go. The police are there. It's a wonder you people wouldn't build sidewalks."

Mr. Green rubbed his hands together. "Oh, yes, Council is going to demand sidewalks at the next meeting. We've already talked about it, haven't we, Mrs. Hunt?"

Marcia's tight lips curled.

"Definitely, Mr. Green, she said. (Copyright Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate)

Bruin Gets Entangled In Fishing Tackle

QUESNEL, B.C.—Fisherman Harry Bourne figured his tackle was too light for the biggest catch he ever lost—a 400-pound bear.

The Vancouver angler was fishing on nearby Quesnel Lake when Bruin—enjoying a swim—got fouled up in Bourne's light trout line. The shaggy beast swam to shore and bounded into the woods still entangled.

Finally the bear broke the line after it was wound around a tree. Bourne and his party retrieved the line and returned to their fishing.

Shortly after Bourne saw Bruin sitting on his haunches on shore, curiously watching the anglers.

Yippee! DOUGHNUT TWISTS

Raised light and tender with new fast DRY Yeast!

● There's a new twist in doughnuts—a new thrill in all your baking! Say goodbye to perishable yeast—Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast keeps full strength until you use it—fast-acting when you use it. Get a dozen packages—it keeps in your cupboard!

DOUGHNUT TWISTS

● Scald 1/2 c. milk, 1/2 c. granulated sugar, 1 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/4 c. shortening; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl 1/2 c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well.

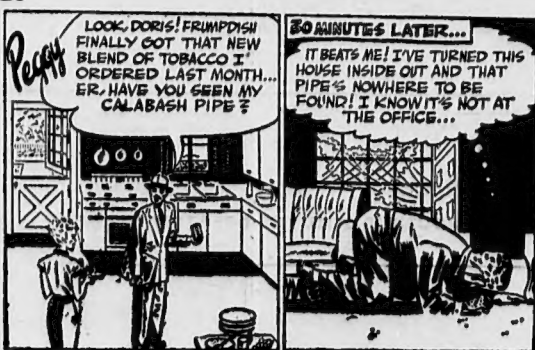

Add cooled milk mixture and stir in 2 well-beaten eggs and 1 tsp. vanilla. Stir in 2 c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 2 1/4 c. (about) once-sifted bread flour. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl and grease top of dough. Cover and set in a warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough and roll out into a rectangle, 1/2" thick; loosen dough; roll again to 1/2" thickness. Cut into strips 7" long and 1/2" wide. Fold strips in half, twist, then pinch ends together. Arrange, well apart, on lightly-floured cookie sheets; grease tops. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Carefully lift, a few at a time, into shortening that has been heated to 365°—hot enough to brown a cube of day-old bread in 60 seconds. When under-sides are browned, turn and cook second sides. Carefully lift from fat and drain on absorbent paper. Coat with a mixture of fruit sugar and cinnamon or brush hot doughnuts with the following syrup: Heat, stirring, until the sugar dissolves, 1 c. granulated sugar, 1/4 c. butter or margarine and 1/2 c. water; simmer 5 mins., then stir in 1 tsp. vanilla; keep hot over boiling water—if syrup becomes too sugary, stir in a little boiling water and heat to boiling point. Yield—3 dozen doughnuts.

Note: Dough may be cut with an orthodox doughnut cutter; fry the doughnuts and the "holes".

practice, until the savings habit is formed.

When it comes to investing you have the choice between invoking the almost unbelievable power of compound interest when harnessed to regular monthly savings on one hand; on the other, putting the money into well seasoned securities. In the first case you need no particular advice for its operation compound interest is both tireless and automatic. In the second instance, that is, with investment securities, you need advice of the most discriminating sort.

You will want to have among your investments some good sound bonds anyway, and then if your available funds permit, some of the best stocks. The latter should be bought outright and never on a shoestring margin. Remember this too. It is wise to keep a part of your funds in liquid form—that is, in cash or such short term securities as can quickly be converted into cash. Then you will be well prepared for emergencies. You might need this money for a personal emergency, or some other investment bargain in the market that had come to your attention.

The point is put each spare dollar to work, twenty-four hours a day and each day of the year, earning more income for you. Your ability to spare these dollars for such a proposition will lead to a surprising increase in your "sparing" power; that is your ability to save. You will be able to see with your own eyes the rising structure of financial independence that is going to stand you in such good stead later in life. But in order that your future income may be ready when you need to start to build that income now.

The word "investment" should be broadly interpreted to include not only bank accounts and securities, but insurance policies your own home—real estate, mortgages and other forms of capital. Life insurance is indeed important. It not only helps people to save but it is a protection as well as an investment. Every person should carry life insurance, but, on the other hand, it is not part of wisdom to place all your earnings in life insurance. Follow instead the practice of diversifying your investments—part in savings account, part in life insurance, and part in sound securities.

However, this advice about investing is almost valueless if it is to be only a temporary effort, or if you allow your investments to be frittered away through carelessness or the greed for more. Rather turn to the fundamental sources of assured income.

And above all turn to hard work initiative and perseverance as the right means of accumulating sufficient funds for your needs, rather than the purely speculative stock market in the hope of getting something for nothing. Lastly, carry out the principle that "godliness with contentment is great gain," in your finances as well as in the rest of your life.

HERE AND THERE

For some days now fine harvesting weather has prevailed and cutting and harvesting this year's crop is making good progress. Combines work late at night. The elevators keep open late to accommodate the farmers.

School teachers are blaming parents and parents, teachers. Employers are concerned at the apparent failure of both. We do not know who is at fault, but certainly the spoken and written word of our rising generation is being marred far to frequently by a slovenly disregard of the elementary rules of grammar and spelling.

Stirling Roueche, grandson of Mrs. M. Roueche and George Hunter, won two ribbons—a first and a third—while competing in the Medicine Hat Light Horse show on "Pal" from the U over C Ranch at Redcliff. Sterling has been a horse man since he first could sit on a horse and Gleichen people will be very much pleased to learn of his success at the Medicine Hat horse show.
